

ABSTRACT

A device, method and system for sensing the temperature or temperature change of an environment. A typically in-vivo device includes an image sensor. The device may sense the dark current noise of the image sensor, 5 and calculate the temperature or a temperature change of the image sensor.